$12,392 PAID CWA AIDS IN CITY, COUNTY

Checks Distributed to 1,670 Workers as Council Acts.
ASK MORE FUNDS
Lawmakers Provide For Widening of Sixth Street.

With the distribution of $12,392.65 in CWA checks to 1,670 workers in Columbiana county and $11,360.92 to 1,365 other aids in Jefferson and Carroll counties by Disbursing Agent J. Howard Sinclair at Lisbon, city officials here today prepared to make application for civil works administration funds for the improvement of West Sixth street from Jefferson to Monroe street.

City Engineer George Bloomgren said that the application is expected to be filed within a few days with Division Engineer Fred L. Biechle of the state highway department at New Philadelphia. Plans will call for repaving the thoroughfare with old bricks, and will not include widening, it was explained.

The action was prompted by an offer of the CWA to expend money for wages and material for the improvement of West Sixth street from the Diamond to Jefferson street, comprising a part of state route No. 7, by turning the old bricks.

Seek Additional Funds.
Acting on a statement by Bloomgren that the CWA officials were believed favorable to widening the section of the street on the state route, two feet on each side, council Friday night instructed Solicitor G. J. Clark to prepare the necessary legislation to be presented Dec. 11, and at the same time authorized Clerk G. A. Shone to apply for additional funds to cover the cost.

It was moved by Councilman E. B. Laughlin and seconded by Lawmaker Walter McClelland that the street be widened between the Diamond and Jefferson street without cost to property owners.

Several persons owning property in the block between Jefferson and Monroe streets protested widening of the street at this point, after which councilmen explained it was promised to make the change only to Jefferson street.

240 Workers Called.
While checks for $2,100 were being distributed here to 240 workers Mayor R. C. Benedum announced plans for putting 300 more of East Liverpool's unemployed to work Monday on four other CWA projects.

Fifty men will report for work at Vine and Ravine streets and the same number at Avondale and Bank streets. One hundred and fifty East Liverpool men will get jobs on the state CWA project on Route No. 7 outside the city limits. Fifty more will go to work on the West Sixth street improvement.

Ninety men today received CWA checks of $15 each for a week's work, the mayor said, while 150 others were paid $5 each for two days' labor.

The mayor also announced that

By The Associated Press.
NAPLES, Dec. 2. — Flying the Red flag, the liner Conte Di Savoia landed Russian Foreign Commissioner Maxim Litvinoff here today after what he told newspapermen was an "excellent voyage" from the United States.

The same ship brought Postmaster General James A. Farley, American Democratic national chairman, who is on a brief vacation with his wife.

M. Litvinoff said he had nothing to say for the present regarding his forthcoming talks with Premier Mussolini, but would make a statement later in Rome.

The Soviet Ambassador to Italy and his staff, together with the High Commissioner of Naples, Pietro Saratino, and other officials met M. Litvinoff.

After conversing for several minutes in the saloon of the ship, the Soviet Foreign Minister left the liner and went by automobile to Sorrento for lunch and to board a train for Rome.

Postmaster General Farley was met by the Rome representative of the Knights of Columbus, Enrico Galeazzi.

Swinging Doors and Brass Rail For Four States After Repeal

New York, Next Tuesday, Will Sell Drinks In Hotels, Restaurants and Clubs.

By The Associated Press.
In New Jersey, Wisconsin, Louisiana and Nevada and maybe Missouri, come next Tuesday, a citizen of 21 who has the inclination will be able to push his way through swinging doors, put his foot on a brass rail, and order anything from beer to full proof spirits.

If he is in New York and wants a drink he'll have to go to a hotel, restaurant, dining car, or vessel, or join a club, and he'll have to sit down to consume.

If he absent minded walks through a swinging door, the place he goes into won't be qualified to serve him and he must not see any signs that urge him to buy. He can look at a bar, but he can't stand up to it and drink anything stronger than beer.

In Illinois he'll likely find the legislature still arguing what to do about liquor, the lid being off in the meantime with the exception that in Chicago, because of a city ordinance, no liquor can be taken while he's standing.

Michigan will let him have all he wants to drink of 3.2. So will Ohio, but later the legislatures of both states may relax existing laws so that he can buy something stronger. Connecticut will let him drink wine and beer on premises. He can take his hard liquor home.

He'll find no special restrictions in Washington unless a special session of the legislature acts on December 4, but if he's in Seattle he'll have to buy anything over 16 per cent alcoholic content from city.

RULES ON OHIO LIQUOR BOARD

Bricker Defines Law On Appointment Plan.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2. — A committee to recommend members of an Ohio liquor control commission would be constitutional only if the committee's authority ceased with its nominations for the original commission, Attorney General John W. Bricker ruled today.

The opinion was on a recommendation of Gov. George White's liquor advisory committee that the presidents of seven state-wide organizations be named to a committee to nominate liquor commissioners, the governor to select the members from nine persons recommended.

Governor White was not favorably impressed with the ruling. "Why should the present governor be compelled to abide by the recommendations of the committee," he asked, "if subsequent governors would not?"

Bricker ruled that the general assembly could appoint a committee as recommended only if their functions were temporary. If the committee's functions were to be permanent, he said, the members could be regarded as public officers, and the general assembly has no constitutional authority to appoint such officers.

The committee in charge is composed of Post Commander Wilbur Harmon; Chairman W. T. Warlick, Edward Roush and John Morgan.

BEER BARON FACES PRISON

Waxy Gordon Given 10 Years, Fined $80,000.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 2. — Waxy Gordon, beer baron and New York's public enemy No. 1, is in the federal house of detention today, facing a ten-year prison sentence and a fine of $80,000 for evasion of income taxes.

He was convicted yesterday of evading and conspiring to evade income taxes in 1930 and 1931 during which years, the government contended, he made $2,365,403 but paid only $2,615.76.

Sentence was passed by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman who called Gordon, "a gang leader of the worst type," who has had "such success in crime that nothing will ever wean him from such a course save actual imprisonment."

In Class With Capone.
The sentence, only four years less than the maximum possible, puts Gordon in a class with Al Capone, who was sentenced to 11 years in prison and fined $50,000 in a similar case in Chicago.

Gordon was convicted on four counts. He was fined $10,000 each on the second and fourth counts, and a similar sum on the first and third counts, but the latter fines were ordered suspended if the first two were paid. In addition, Judge Coleman fined him $60,000 to cover costs of prosecution.

The big beer man received the stiffest jolt of his career with little show of emotion, but his wife sat behind him sobbing: "Gordon is no fool. He is very much of a philosopher at this time. He knows he has had a fair trial and he accepts his fate."

Nevertheless, Wahle said an appeal will be taken to the United States court of appeals and that ball will be sought on Monday.

During the trial the government contended Gordon got his huge income as the head of a powerful brewery ring.

Mark H. Shank, of Akron, Given Death Penalty In Poison Murder

Benton, Ark., Jury is Unconvinced by His Plea of Insanity in Three Deaths.

By The Associated Press.
BENTON, Ark., Dec. 2. — A jury unconvinced by his plea of insanity, has decreed the death penalty for Mark H. Shank, Akron, O., attorney, convicted of the poison murder of Alvin Colley. Shank is also under indictment for the murder of Colley's wife and two of their children. All died from poison placed in grape juice at a picnic last August 15.

The verdict came late last night after the jury deliberated nine hours. The defendant showed no emotion but his wife collapsed and was carried from the courtroom.

Will Seek New Trial.
Defense attorneys announced they would renew the fight to free Shank. He has until next Thursday to file motion for a new trial, notice of which was given after the verdict. If the motion is overruled, the attorney will be sentenced to death immediately. He will have 60 days in which to file an appeal.

Apparently no more concerned over the verdict that he had been

In any proceedings of the trial, Shank was rushed to the Little Rock jail where he had been held since the crime. He was still in the apparent stupor in which he has been throughout the trial.

Shank's counsel based its hopes for an acquittal on a plea of insanity. Testimony was allowed to go into the records blaming third degree methods for his alleged confession.

Prosecution Shows Alleged Motive.
Against the plea of the defense, the prosecution contended the crime was motivated by Shank's fear of the possibility of being implicated with Colley in the alleged theft of documents from the prosecutor's office at Barberton, Ohio, and his desire to preserve his reputation and "to keep out of the penitentiary."

Four-year-old Clyde Colley, the only member of the Colley family to survive the fatal picnic, was ready today to return to Ohio with Lloyd Colley, brother of Alvin. Clyde also was poisoned but recovered.

By The Associated Press.
TORONTO, Dec. 2. — Martin J. Insull, former Chicago utilities director, lost his fight against extradition to the United States today when Justice A. C. Kingstone of the Ontario supreme court granted the appeal of Cook county, Ill., for his return.

At the same time Justice Kingstone gave Insull the right to appeal against the judgment within 15 days.

Brother Now in Greece.

Insull's brother, Samuel Insull, Jr., is now in Athens, Greece, where he waged two successful court fights against extradition.

Martin Insull himself has been living in Orillia, Ont., more than a year, since the failure of the Insull enterprises.

The present meeting schedule for the three conventions would indicate that Utah will be the 36th state, but the time of the actual voting may bring one of the other states into last place.

SLAG ROAD TO BEACON LIGHT

Madison Township Improvement Completed by County.

The road leading from the Lincoln highway, at Rice's corner, to the government air beacon tower in Madison township, has been surfaced with slag, by county employees, after being graded during the summer, completing an agreement between the county commissioners and F. H. Tower, chief federal engineer of the lighthouse division of the Buffalo district.

The light, known as a master beacon, since it revolves at about 1,450 feet above sea level, is said to be the highest beacon light in Ohio. The tower is 94 feet high, being anchored in 1,000 cubic feet of cement at each corner.

The equipment with which the light is operated is very heavy, being about seven feet high and six feet wide. A power line extending from Glenmoor provides current for the beacon light and the county airport, nearby.

The light is turned on or off automatically, day or night by a photoelectric cell. Poor visibility during the day will turn the light on the same as darkness will at night. The beacon, aided by its powerful reflectors, is visible to pilots flying between Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

NEW RULE IN FRANCE SEEN

Chautemps Cabinet to Fall Within Week Predicted.

By The Associated Press.
PARIS, Dec. 2.—The danger of overthrow hung over the cabinet of Premier Camille Chautemps today as he faced parliament in his first official appearance to read a ministerial declaration of intention to balance the budget.

A vote of confidence was promised by a majority of the deputies on the new cabinet's program, but the government's downfall by the latter part of next week was freely predicted.

In his stead, a real "public safety" cabinet of all parties under Jules Jeanneney or Fernand Bouissou, was advocated in the lobbies to revive confidence.

Preliminary to their submission to parliament, revamped measures to balance the budget and protect the French currency were presented to the cabinet last night.

Repeated warnings that the government must be permitted to take drastic steps to protect the French currency were given new importance with further reports of gold flowing outward.

In the week ended November 24, said a recent bank of France statement, 1,460,000,000 francs in gold was withdrawn.

The Chautemps ministry is the fourth of the year.

Adding further to the troubles of the new ministry was a so-called "hunger march" on the capital. The main body of marchers was expected today.

NEGRO GUILTY IN ALABAMA

Jury Convicts Heywood Patterson in Scottsboro Case.

By The Associated Press.
DECATUR, Ala., Dec. 2.—Convicted a third time in less than three years on a charge of attacking a white woman, Heywood Patterson, one of seven Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" again was under sentence of death today.

Unmoved, the 21-year-old Chattanooga, Tenn., Negro, last night heard a Morgan county jury return the verdict he had heard on two previous occasions—"We the jury find the defendant guilty as charged, and fix his punishment at death."

Patterson was convicted of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, aboard a freight train, on March 25, 1931.

Seated beside Patterson as the verdict was read was Clarence Norris, second of the defendants to be tried at this time of court. The Patterson jury reported its decision after 25 hours deliberation.

The Negroes were first convicted and sentenced to death at Scottsboro, seat of Jackson county, in April, 1931. They won an appeal to the United States supreme court and the trials were transferred under a change of venue. At his second trial Patterson was given the death penalty but the trial judge set aside the verdict.

Judge Callahan probably will wait until completion of the trial of Norris and the five other defendants, all scheduled to be tried at this time of court, before formally sentencing Patterson.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney, retained by the International Labor Defense, indicated another appeal would be carried to the United States supreme court.

'FREE LUNCHES' TO BE BANNED

Ohio Considers Stringent Liquor Control Legislation.

By International News Service.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2.—Along with the saloon, the "free lunch" and "drink on the house" popular in pre-prohibition days will be banned under new liquor control legislation, it was indicated here.

As drawn up by the bill drafting committee of the governor's advisory liquor commission, the proposed liquor regulations specifically prohibit the free lunch and also free drinks.

A drinker would not be required to purchase food with his liquor in licensed establishments dispensing it by the glass, but if he did eat he would have to pay for the food. Lunch stands, drug stores and filling stations would not be eligible for permits to sell liquor by the glass, although a special permit would allow drug stores to fill liquor prescriptions.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen

Every citizen of the United States who contemplates taking a drink of any alcoholic beverage after repeal of the 18th amendment becomes effective next week should ask himself this question: Does it pay to be legal?

National prohibition did not fail because people who like to drink were unable to obtain alcoholic beverages. It failed because of disgust with a situation in which a human appetite was turned to the advantage of a class of purveyors who were obliged to maintain themselves by illegal and frequently violent methods.

While it was impossible to obtain alcoholic beverages legally, resentment against the system by which those beverages were being supplied illegally was not strong enough to paralyze it by refusal to support it. The 18th amendment and the legislation which was supposed to make it effective demanded too much.

Therefore, people sought to establish a more logical system by voting to repeal the amendment and to terminate the experiment of national prohibition. This week they will attain that objective. Control of the liquor traffic will be returned to the states and to the communities within the states.

Once more liquor will become legally available in most regions. There will remain, however, illegal competition with the legal systems that have been and will be established. The huge business which developed under national prohibition is not going to give up easily. It is strong enough to grow defiance at those who would take away its income.

The people will decide its fate by their willingness or refusal to support it. If the great majority of those who will be consumers of alcoholic beverages decide that it pays to be legal, the illegal traffic will be starved to death—not immediately, but in the course of a few years. Americans have decided it is not unlawful to take a drink. Having remained the right to drink legally, they must exercise it if they are to destroy the menacing business they fostered during prohibition.

Boys Who Made Good

All-America football players don't just happen. The making of them is a wondrous process occupying years and expenditure of more tons of energy than could be estimated. Not the least wondrous part of it comes after the football season, furthermore, when candidates are thinned out and final selections made.

Every coach with an outstanding boy on his squad would like to get recognition for him on at least the third All-America team of some eminent sports authority. Actually, there are enough all-Americans in the country to start a colony, if the coaches' kind words can be taken seriously.

Unfortunately, only 11 of them will be able to achieve transitory glory. Eleven more will be submerged on the alternate list and as many as two dozen more will pass almost unnoticed among the honorable mentions. But for the first 11, despite the speed with which their fame passes, great moments are in store.

They are the boys who made good. Like the frank winner of one of the coveted Nobel prizes, they are forced to admit that the publicity which goes with the honor is priceless. Even though the bloom has fled from the stock and bond business, they will walk among flowers while their game lasts.

Thousands of dollars have been spent in the business of creating their brief interlude of fame. Because the public likes to read about football and because there nearly always is supply where demand exists, they will be offered as the parting gesture of the newspapers and news agencies which have recorded their deeds. They are fortunate young men.

Let's Go Native

The commonest comment on the lynching of two confessed kidnapers by a San Jose, Calif., mob goes like this: "They got what they deserved. I don't believe Governor Rolfe showed good sense in commending the lynchers though. By encouraging lynching, he may have made himself the indirect cause for a miscarriage of justice in some other case."

The problem is illustrated exactly by this general reaction to the San Jose affair. Americans are duty bound to condemn lynching because as individuals they are unwilling to give mobs the right to perform capital punishment. Those hardy souls who command mob have become the intricate and sometimes devious processes of justice are for getting the achievement represented in establishment of courts whose judgment is upheld by the people.

Governor Rolfe has brought the spirit of Judge Lynch back to life. By innuendo he has said to the American people that a practice which preceded courts and which is characteristic of populations living under unsettled conditions and susceptible to anarchy is worthy of use. No more pointed comment on the "breakdown of law and order" which President Hoover pointed out was one of the country's most serious problems has been made. Coming from the governor of a state, its importance is almost beyond estimate.

There may be no material increase in the practice of lynch law. An invitation has been extended, however. Informally, the people have been invited to show whether they want to take justice out of the hands of regularly constituted agents, or whether they are willing to let it remain where their civilized development caused it to be placed. If there be more lynchings in the next year than this year, Governor Rolfe—Governor Lynch—cannot be held personally accountable. If the breakdown is there, he can be charged only with revealing it. The kindest consideration can make of it nothing better than a shameful distinction for California's governor.

"I Don't Understand It"

Nine of every 10 attempts to discuss Roosevelt administration's monetary policy end with the confession, "I don't understand it." People are willing to admit that however clear their convictions on what is wrong and what is right they are unable to distinguish wrong and right in the presidential policy.

Pressed further, they are willing to admit that they know precious little about that policy. They have heard that Mr. Roosevelt is concentrating upon establishment of a commodity dollar, whatever that may be. Yet, the mere reminder of the fact that a commodity dollar can't be established by presidential order, but must be authorized by congress, is sufficient to dissolve certainty in that quarter.

People whose opinions customarily are accepted as truth are to be found on both sides of whatever question there really is on national monetary policy. Alfred E. Smith's remarks are categorically denied by Father Coughlin. Bernard Baruch and his beliefs are repudiated by Senator Borah. Professor Whoozie makes a declaration which immediately is challenged by Professor Whoozat. This committee of No. 1 citizens is balance by another committee of equally prominent individuals.

An expert observer claims that stability is foreshadowed by the treasury's failure to raise the price of gold daily. Another observer denies that the matter is of any importance and is backed up the next day by another increase in the price of gold. Old-line Democrats and old-line Republicans lie down in the same bed and radicals play congenially with conservatives. Wall Street and the bankers hear that terrible charges have been made against them, but are able to hear in the other ear that they have nothing to do with the situation.

This state of confusion has a paralyzing effect on all economic activity. There is only one means available to mitigate it and perhaps to eliminate it entirely. President Roosevelt owes the country an explanation of what he intends to do. The explanation rapidly is becoming overdue.

Pennsylvania Blunders Ahead

Pennsylvania, seemingly indulging a penchant for remodeling its little part of the world, is considering a law to keep heavier types of motor trucks off the highways from noon on Saturday to midnight Sunday and all days on legal holidays. A bill to that effect has been introduced in the state senate. It is said to embody recommendations by Governor Pinchot.

If it were possible to speculate on the hot water into which the state would wade without having to admit that the legislature might pass such a fool law, a fair amount of fun might be derived from the proposal. Tragically, the possibility of entertainment has been removed by a curious disposition in the Keystone state to try almost anything concerning motor vehicle traffic.

There is a better than 50-50 chance that the bill will be enacted. The great state, which only recently decided that it might be proper under certain circumstances to play a game of baseball on Sunday, may shortly be devoting a large part of its abundant energy to chasing big trucks off its highways at one second after noon on Saturday.

Highlights in Ohio History

AN OHIO PRESCOTT

By J. H. Galbraith

Written For The Associated Press
James S. Prescott, appropriate name for a his'orian, is the best authority on the history of early operations of the Shakers in Ohio but even he addressed himself to the preservation of the story of his own little center colony in the vicinity of Cleveland. It is interesting to note that he came to the colony as a craftsman seeking work and incidentally observing their devotion, zeal, inspiring singing and flaming testimonials, decided that he had found the real Pentecostal church and "him of whom Moses and the prophets did write" and immediately became one of them.

Prescott was a native of Massachusetts. He moved toward the west upon becoming a journeyman mason and was found by one of the Shaker Heights authorities who had come to Cleveland looking for building craftsmen to help erect their homes. They were still living in cabins. This was in 1827. He died at North Union, Ohio, April 3, 1888, in his 86th year and now no one knows the place of his grave.

The Carlsbad Caverns

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 2.—If you like wonders, something to make the European with his Acropolis and Forum bow his head, go off a short distance to the northeast to the Carlsbad caverns in National Park, New Mexico.

You are not told that the caverns are "the eighth wonder of the world," they are the world's first wonder ahead of the other seven.

It could not be otherwise, since man made the other seven and God made this one. Rinsling Brothers' press agent could not describe one big room cavern 625 feet, more than three city blocks wide, three hundred and fifty feet to the ceiling, and three quarters of a mile long:

"Fathomless pools, clear as glass, terraced bowls of onyx marble, filled with crystal water, totem poles delicately etched by the earth's chemistry, rippling curtains of tinted silk frozen into everlasting beauty, rushing multi-colored flames shooting upward to mingle with a forest of glittering ice blades that slant down from the vaulted roof. Some have likened it to the Grand Canyon roofed over with an inverted Zion Park."

Most Wonderful Baby

You should see those Carlsbad caverns. Yet how marvelous is nature. There is something as wonderful in this Pullman car of the Southern Pacific, an American boy baby born in San Francisco, seven months old, as fair as a harvest apple, and about the same color from yellow hair to small fat feet.

His name, like that of his father, is Robert E. Steinbach, and soon he will be challenging "Baby Leroy," worrying our national high finance almost to death by earning five thousand dollars a week in movies and deserving it.

Louis B. May should call on this baby. Every old lady that passes stops to kiss the baby and pinch his cheek and each time the mother is proud.

What a pity that nice old ladies so fond of babies can't have them any more, and so many young ladies that could have them, won't have them.

The baby has been traveling with his father and mother for one month steadily but never cries, although he yells at his mother if she pays too much attention to his father.

Jealousy is the first emotion developed after fear in the baby brain. See Darwin. The baby's father, who works in the passenger traffic department of the Southern Pacific in San Francisco, is thirty-three, the mother twenty-four.

Her name is Mary, the right name for the mother of such a baby. She says:

"He has to yell when he is excited, and it was embarrassing on the boat trip up the Mississippi. Every time the guide told us something particularly wonderful, the baby yelled, as if he didn't believe. That made the people laugh, and I had to take him away. I wanted to hear."

Does she take care of the baby herself? "What do you think I'd let anybody else touch him?"

No teeth yet, but the baby gnaws the head of a rubber doll, with savage energy.

"He only does whatever he wants to. I wish he would sleep in the day time, but he doesn't want to."

For 12 hours the mother asked the baby questions once every two minutes, answering every question for him, the arrogantly proud father occasionally suggesting a better answer, all in baby talk.

If the young woman who thinks she must have "a career" could watch the father, mother and baby, for half an hour, she would know that a baby is the best career for any girl.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Our Sealymham is now romping through Elysian fields on the thither side of the veil. It is not difficult to imagine him, a bit bewildered in his sudden transition, cocking a be-whiskered head and listening for familiar footsteps he no longer hears.

Has the forgiving heart of the loyal dog and doubtless, were he able, would lick the hand of his conscienceless poisoner. If he could talk, he might even say: "It wasn't very nice of you, sir, to take me from those I love and who love me. I only tried to make people happy in an unhappy world."

Likely he would say that. For Rainbow was a gentleman born and never in his four years of joyous living did he bear malice. His bright button eyes seemed forever pleading that he was trying not to be in the way but had just barged in a moment to see that you were not lonely.

It is the fervent prayer of his grief-stricken mistress that wherever he is he will suffer no pang of the loneliness he tried so earnestly to relieve among those he loved. And Rainbow loved every human being he came across. One of his choicest pals was Joe, the ash-man.

There was a Pagliacci touch to Rainbow, a clown with a thin taint of sadness. He was always unwittingly involved in some outrageously preposterous comedy. He awkwardly upset upright lamps and missed the ensuing crash by an eyelash. He would walk into mirrors, and get himself hopelessly entangled—born neckties to certain hangings. Then, his moments of arriere-pensee when he could sit statue-like, a picture of utter dejection. I now wonder in those melancholy megrims if some instinctiveness was not warning him, a thin rattle across the void, of mankind's often inhumanity toward dumb, trusting and helpless animals.

The Boston and I are missing Rainbow more than he will ever realize on our evening sundown walks. Always the Boston is looking back. Rainbow was the short lagger, grouching along 20 paces or so behind, save in the park when a squirrel would flash across our path and go scurrying impudently out on a bough. Then Rainbow was all electric quiver and staccato barks. Sometimes when his tardiness would inspire a rebuke, he would quail under the stern point of a rebuking finger, roll over on his back and look so forlornly contrite we would wind up scratching him behind the ear.

For two years he had a perfect realization that he could tear into the Boston and trounce him soundly. He routed three bigger dogs in one fight. Yet, as though conscious he was somewhat a trespasser upon an established dog, he permitted the Boston to nip his hindquarters and otherwise bully him when the right of priority was being maintained.

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

BY GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Social and political Washington has noticed a void for some months. There has been a dearth of those penetrating epigrams from the facile mind of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

The other evening Princess Alice was shining at a local function.

"Oh, Mrs. Longworth," exclaimed one lady present, "with so much going on in this 'New Deal' year, you are in the White House, are giving us, why haven't we heard more from you?"

"My dear," was the answer, "I am trying terribly hard to be impartial and malevolent at the same time."

Re-fills

Secretary of Interior Ickes—Eye-keeper, please—is dead set against issuing any official compilation at present on the number of men put back in jobs by the public works administration.

Some of his aids think he is making a mistake. They have seen his confidential charts and noticed PWA employment shown thereon has jumped around 10 per cent each week for some weeks past. But Ickes vetoes every suggestion that figures be given to the press.

If PWA were permitted to make them public you would be told 1,700,000 had been reemployed to date through expenditure of public works dollars.

There is one little catch—and an explanation therefore—in this figure.

It would be labelled "Direct and indirect re-employment."

Administration statistics, headed by Commissioner of Labor Statistics Isidor Lubin, estimate that for every man put to work on a federal-financed project two others find indirect employment in manufacture and shipment of the materials the government worker uses and in other ways.

The 1,700,000 total breaks down as follows:

Men "directly" employed on PWA projects, 475,350; men "indirectly" employed as a result, 950,650; the Civilian Conservation corps, 270,000; administrative personnel of PWA and NRA, 3,100, and Tennessee Valley Authority, 900.

They don't count 2 for 1 against the office workers of PWA, NRA and TVA. Also no attempt is made to multiply personnel of the C. C. C. to show "indirect" employment.

In addition a separate set of books is kept for the Civil Works Administration. A million men and women went off relief rolls to draw pay checks last Saturday from the emergency jobs Harry Hopkins found them.

The 475,350 on "direct" public works largely are engaged in federal projects such as road building and construction work for the War, Navy and Interior departments.

Ickes expects the state, county, municipal and private projects for which he has allocated money to show some life after the first of the year. They are calculated to take the load off Civil Works.

Dislodged

Lodge 91 of the American Federation of Government Employees (affiliated with the A. F. of L.) still has the membership of about 100 it acquired in the first flurry.

At their last meeting only 25 or 30 turned out.

The blue eagle can have the satisfaction of knowing they worried their boss.

On the night the NRA people called their first mass meeting to protest against over-time work and pay inequities (with President William Green of the A. F. of L. as principal speaker) they almost ran into a counter-attraction.

General Hugh Johnson, fidgety over this expose of the Blue Eagle's own nest, was all set to throw a "family party" with all NRA employees as guests.

At the last minute he was dissuaded by aids who pointed out it would merely force an open issue with those comparatively few workers who wanted to unionize.

Snag

Gene Vidal's understandable passion for advancing the cause of aerial navigation seems to keep him down in hot water of late.

First the Director of the Aeronautics Bureau (remember him as the erstwhile Army football star and then a big-time war aviator?) jumped the gun and announced Public Work Administration had allotted $1,500,000 for building an experimental section of a seadrome. If it worked, five or these aerial islands were to make a traffic lane across the Atlantic.

Unfortunately the state department heard some possible dissents from our European neighbors and the War and Navy department decided they had better look into that ambitious experiment. The allotment is still hanging fire.

Then Gene saw a chance to blanket the country with airports through the new Civil Works Administration. He went to Administrator Hopkins and asked that 30,000 men be earmarked for him.

He promised to have the municipalities stirred up and the work available by Dec. 10.

Hopkins told Vidal airport construction and improvement was part of the scheme.

Vidal enthusiastically went back to his office, worked out a wage scale, multiplied it by 30,000, tossed in 20 or 30 per cent for material and announced to the world he had $10,000,000 for airport work.

The announcement was designed only to steam up the cities and get them rushing to Washington with applications.

Alas, the Civil Works Administration said it had pledged no $10,000,000 or any part thereof. Airport work will be passed on by the respective state administrators on individual merit.

Notes

A Washington war reporter that an Ohio war wrote in to civil works administration saying: "Please send us some new leaves. We have raked ours until they are worn out." It would seem, however, that raking worn-out leaves at $15 a week is better than being on the relief rolls at 60 cents a day for the whole family. . . . The department of commerce reports that the ladies of South Africa are manifesting a great yen for fancy American pocketbooks. . . . Someone must have sold the fair sex of the Dark Continent the idea we had discovered a way to keep money in the pocketbooks.

By JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—One large New York bank has taken care of most of the government's actual gold purchases abroad. It has handled about $18,000,000 to date and has been paid in RFC debentures—which it sold in turn to people who wanted to invest in short term governments.

Ex-Under Secretary Acheson's published opinion that the debentures are not legally government obligations knocked the bottom out of the market for these securities. Nobody here wants them as a gift—although they circulated freely enough before. For the moment the holders seem to be stuck.

But smart New Yorkers have concocted a scheme to dump them in the lap of the Federal reserve. They still will threaten to sell off their hands—to offer them in the open market for whatever they will bring. They figure that bids would show an enormous discount which wouldn't be good advertising for government credit. They are confident that the stunt will work.

Sixpence

Local banks and the RFC finally reached an amicable agreement about cotton loans. The banks were adamant against lending ten cents a pound, but consented to kick in with six cents if the government would guarantee repayment. This was arranged through the department of agriculture. So more than half the money the cotton farmers are getting on loans comes from New York banks. A similar system is probable in the case of corn loans.

The six cents a pound which the RFC doesn't have to pay out of its own funds is quite a help and relations on this front are more cordial than before.

Licenses

The securities act provides that any officer, director or employee of a Federal reserve member bank must obtain a license from his district Federal reserve bank before he can serve as a director of any other corporation. Getting a license is a complicated process.

Three statements have to be filed with the Federal reserve before the applications are considered. One is from the corporation which wishes to make use of his service and another from the bank by which he is employed. The third is a statement by the applicant himself detailing his net worth.

Local critics point out what a sweet break this gives to people who want to sue directors. With net worth a matter of record it simplifies the problem of how much to sue for. Of course, the records are not public property, but litigants have been known to be ingenious about such matters.

Pleased

Strange as it seems there is one security house in New York which is pleased with both the Securities Act and the Glass Bill. The firm is acquiring a growing business from expatriates of expiring bank affiliates (because of the Glass Bill) and the Securities Act doesn't bother them because they do no issue business. They think the New Deal is hot stuff.

Hurricane

New Yorkers who have had recent contacts with congressmen say that the anti-Wall Street legislation of the last session was a zephyr to the hurricane that's coming. Banks, investment houses and the Stock Exchange are all slated to be taken for the wildest ride yet. As far as Wall Street can make out no one in the executive end of the government will lift a finger to save them from the ravaging jaws. They have felt out the slightest hint of relief and have been unanimously told they might as well stick out their chins and take it.

Central Bank

New York also gets reports that quite a few congressmen are thirsting for the gore of the Federal Reserve. Local inflationists have tipped them off that the R. F. C. provides a framework for a brand new government—controlled bank. A few additional gadgets such as rediscount and note issue privileges would put it in shape to function as fully equipped central bank.

Chase

The latest story which will be submitted to Pecora by formerly close-mouthed Chase employees concerns the Havana branch. In 1929 the executive of the Cuban branch got up a pool or their own in Chase stock. When they had accumulated profits of $100,000, they decided to sell. Shortly afterward New York advised them—verbally, of course—to buy the stock back, otherwise, Nobody wanted to lose his job.

Gold

No matter where the dollar eventually settles partisans of the old-style genuine free gold market are convinced their cause is lost. Jimmy Wargus—although a sound moneyer—is known to have been reflecting high administration opinion when he advocated complete holdings to central banks or banks of issue. Wonder if he knows that this is pure flat?

The Sunlit Road

"As dew to the blooms, and bud to the bee, as scent to the rose, are these memories to me."

By TOM T. JONES

Although George Washington, the first President of the United States, issued on October 3 of that year the proclamation for the first Thanksgiving on November 26, 1789, following the installation of the constitutional form of government, the departure was the consummation of a resolution to that end by congress.

In the house of representatives of the first congress this resolution was offered by Elias Boudinot, a representative of New Jersey, who, Philadelphia-born, had removed to that state. He was eight years younger than George Washington and a lawyer. He was 49 years of age at the time that he sponsored this resolution and following its passage headed the committee of three named by the speaker to carry it with representatives of the senate to President Washington.

It is significant that this man, who at the outset of the activities of the United States government, felt the need for a day of national thanksgiving, should have been at the moment and thereafter a leading figure of his community and state. From 1772 to 1821 he served on the board of trustees of Princeton university.

He had previously been a member on two different occasions of the continental congress during the progress of the Revolutionary war. When the long war for independence of the American colonies came to an end he was the president of this body. As such he in his official capacity signed for America the treaty of peace which then was consummated with England.

He afterward served in the first, second and third congresses, but did not stand for renomination in 1794. In the following year he became the director of the United States mint which position he held for 10 years. In 1816, when he was 76 years of age, he was honored with the first presidency of the American Bible society which organization in subsequent years has had numerous outstanding men as presidents and vice presidents. He, an Episcopalian, was buried in the St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal cemetery in Burlington, N. J., when five years later, he succumbed at the age of 81.

Two Oppose Resolution

The two other members of the house committee who accompanied Representative Boudinot to present the Thanksgiving resolution to President Washington were Roger Sherman and Peter Silvester, the former a representative from Connecticut and the latter from New York. Roger Sherman, born in Newton, Mass., had become a lawyer following learning the trade of shoemaker. Peter Silvester, also a lawyer, had been born on Long Island and was a resident of Kinderhook, N. Y., where he was a lawyer.

The latter had been a judge and for 21 years was the regent of the University of New York. After service in the first and second congress he served interims in both houses of the New York legislature. He evidently was a member of the Dutch Reformed church for his remains were laid to rest in 1808, when he passed away at 74, in a plot on which

BUTLER URGES VETS TO UNITE

Ex-soldiers Could Establish Dictatorship Marine Says.

By The Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2.—Former soldiers could establish a dictatorship of their own in the United States within 30 days, believes Smedley D. Butler.

But, they won't because they are too patriotic, "dumb" and "too full of personal jealousies," the fiery former commander of the marines told the Cincinnati club last night. With his usual vehemence, Butler turned his oratorical guns on the American and international bankers, the National Economy League, the American Legion, former President Hoover, the R. F. C., the politicians, General Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, the gangsters, the public in general and President Roosevelt.

Deploping what he called the passive attitude of the war veterans, Butler declared:

"What do they do? They sit and yowl and lots of time they don't even yowl. Sometimes their yowl is nothing more than a squawk. They sit and yowl when the politicians and the international bankers and the federal taxpayers call them treasury raiders.

"They don't even howl when congress and Roosevelt take away their bonus and in the next six months turn over $2,500,000 to the railroads and the banks. They don't raise even a squawk when the President takes their money and sends it out to the conservation corps to plant trees and give jobs to a half a million."

The war veterans were called upon to "knife the politicians at the polls."

"Get yourself together," Butler declared. "Forget your jealousies and your squabbles and everything else except your injustices. Play ducks and drakes with the politicians. Pretend you are with them and then knife them at the polls."

FIND TUSK OF HUGE MASTODON

Bones of Animal, Extinct for 50,000 Years, Unearthed in Green County, Ohio.

By The Associated Press.
DAYTON, O., Dec. 2.—Pieces of the huge tusks of a mastodon extinct for 50,000 years, were being held here today for the inspection by Ohio university zoologists.

Hope that an entire skeleton of the prehistoric animal may be found was expressed by Stanley Hertzler, operator of a gravel pit, near New Jasper, Greene county, where the pieces of tusk were found.

Hertzler immediately stopped operations when a gravel scoop pulled the piece from the underwater pit, desiring that excavation for the skeleton be supervised by experts. Only a half-dozen mastodon skeletons are said to be in existence.

Dr. Sigmund Metzler, curator of the Dayton Library museum, to whom the tusk specimens were brought, estimated them to be 100,000 years old.

owned stores, and he'll have to have a permit.

Pennsylvania's Regulations Listed
Delaware and Pennsylvania will let him drink in hotels, restaurants and clubs. So will Colorado, provided he doesn't desire more than wine or beer. He may also buy hard liquor by the bottle in Pennsylvania from hotels, restaurants and clubs until January 2, when the state itself plans to take over that kind of retailing.

If he wants to take his hard liquor home he can buy it from regularly licensed liquor stores in New York—up to three quarts, and in most of the other states that aren't dry he can buy it at drug, grocery or delicatessen stores.

The chances are he's already been drinking in Louisiana—in saloons that opened their doors and made no secret of it since the state voted repeal.

In Missouri saloons will be legal by default of the legislature which still is working on the problem. It is somewhat the same in Wisconsin, but New Jersey and Nevada have made up their minds—and in them the saloon will be back.

Three Persons Fined On Suspicion Charges

Fines totaling $30 and costs were meted out against three men on suspicious persons charges when they pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge Harry Brokaw today. They are: Clarence Clutter, John McShane and Albert Donahoe who were assessed $10 and costs each. They were arrested on the Ohio river bank at the foot of Union street at 1:20 a. m. today by Patrolman Robert Borger.

A suspicious person charge preferred against Clyde Barnes of Jethro by Patrolman Robert Borger was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Carroll county with 378 workers will receive $4,281.30. This is an average of $7.82 for the 3,035 employees. Owing to an increase in employment, the checks will be larger for distribution for the week ending Dec. 7.

It is expected all unemployed men and women will be registered by Thursday noon, when the office will be closed. The cards will then be sent to Lisbon for filing.

Neiser said that applicants would be registered Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday between 8:30 a. m. and noon, regardless of alphabetical sequence of names. Four hundred persons were listed at headquarters in the high school auditorium Friday, and at least 400 more were registered by noon today.

112,000 Families Off Relief
The Associated Press said the flashing picks and shovels of CWA workers struck 112,000 families and more than $3,000,000 off Ohio's relief load for December.

The state relief commission today prepared to allocate $1,827,296.67 to 77,253 families on relief lists in 44 counties. The commission also made ready pay envelopes totalling $2,000,000 for 100,000 CWA workers.

And, Major E. O. Braught estimated by the middle of next week all of the 165,000 men in Ohio's original quota will be at work and the state will then be ready for a final quota of 55,000 more.

The CWA army was increased by 12,000 recruits Friday.

Last month more than 189,000 families were carried on the relief rolls and the relief bill mounted to requests of nearly $5,000,000. Added to the $1,827,296 budgeted by the state relief commission there will be available for the relief during the month $189,559 in local funds available from bond sales, Red Cross contributions and other private sources.

The Columbiana county relief budget for December shows 1,371 families, $32,250 budget and $1,474 local funds.

PAN-AMERICAN MEET SUNDAY

100 Delegates at Montevideo for Conference.

By The Associated Press.
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 2.—One hundred delegates, including ten foreign ministers, representing the republics of North, Central and South America, engaged in conversations today preparatory to the opening tomorrow of the Pan-American conference.

A banquet last night at the hotel occupied by Secretary of State Hull and the United States delegation gave indications of a closer understanding between the two North American republics of Mexico and the United States.

Foreign Secretary Puig Casauranc and the members of the Mexican delegation were the guests. The apparently social function served to allay rumors of a purported Spanish-American bloc which was said in certain quarters to include Mexico, Cuba and Haiti.

It was freely admitted that the most difficult problems which the conference would face were those of the Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay, and the monetary and debt situation.

THE LIGHT OF HIS WORD

The Rich Young Ruler

During the closing events of Jesus Perea Ministry, He has 'blessed the little children and gone forth' when a wealthy young ruler kneels to Him, saying, 'Good Master, what shall I do, that I may inherit eternal life?' Jesus was immediately impressed with the earnest enthusiastic desire of this young man.

Desiring to have the young man talk more, Jesus wants to know why he should call Him 'good'? Jesus' question is given not to deny His goodness and fellowship with God, but to turn the young man's thoughts to God as the source of all goodness. Also Jesus' words are to turn the young man's thoughts away from Jesus as a teacher who will tell him just what to do.

This young ruler has obeyed all the commandments given to him by the rabbis and lawyers, but he seems to feel there is still something that he will have to do in order to 'inherit eternal life.' Christ's love for this young ruler is not blinded by the fact that the young man's weakness is an inordinate trust in riches. He commanded him to sell all his possessions, then "to take up the cross and follow me."

We are not told in the gospels whether the rich young ruler accepted this command and invitation or not. But we do know the Savior wanted him. When Peter questioned Jesus as to whether the disciples would enter the kingdom, as they had given up everything to follow Him, Jesus assures Peter that no one shall lose his reward, and that God will be the judge. for 'with men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.'

Matt. 16:16-26 Mark 10:17-22 Luke 18:18-33

WEIRD CATS FROM SIAM—This weird trio of cats from Siam attracted considerable attention on the liner Lurline on its last trip from Los Angeles to Honolulu. Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson, of Honolulu, is the owner of the cats and is shown with them in her cabin. Their faces are coal black and their bodies are white with black shading.

THEIR MAJESTIES DEPART—This colorful spectacle, snapped outside Buckingham Palace, London, shows King George and Queen Mary riding in their royal coach as they left for the parliament building where the king made his traditional appearance to open the legislative session.

MOB BATTLES MILITIA—A squad of the Maryland national guardsmen is pictured guarding the exterior of the armory at Salisbury, Md., which was stormed by a mob when the soldiers refused to release four men who have been accused of taking part in the lynching of a negro at Princess Anne, Md., recently. The militia was called out to aid in the arrest of suspected members of the lynching party.

SHORT AND SWAGGER—Short swagger coats, according to stylists, are the rage this season. This model is of chinchilla, with muff of the same material. It shows to good advantage if the flat brimmed, and low crowned sailor hat, or one similar to it, is affected with it.

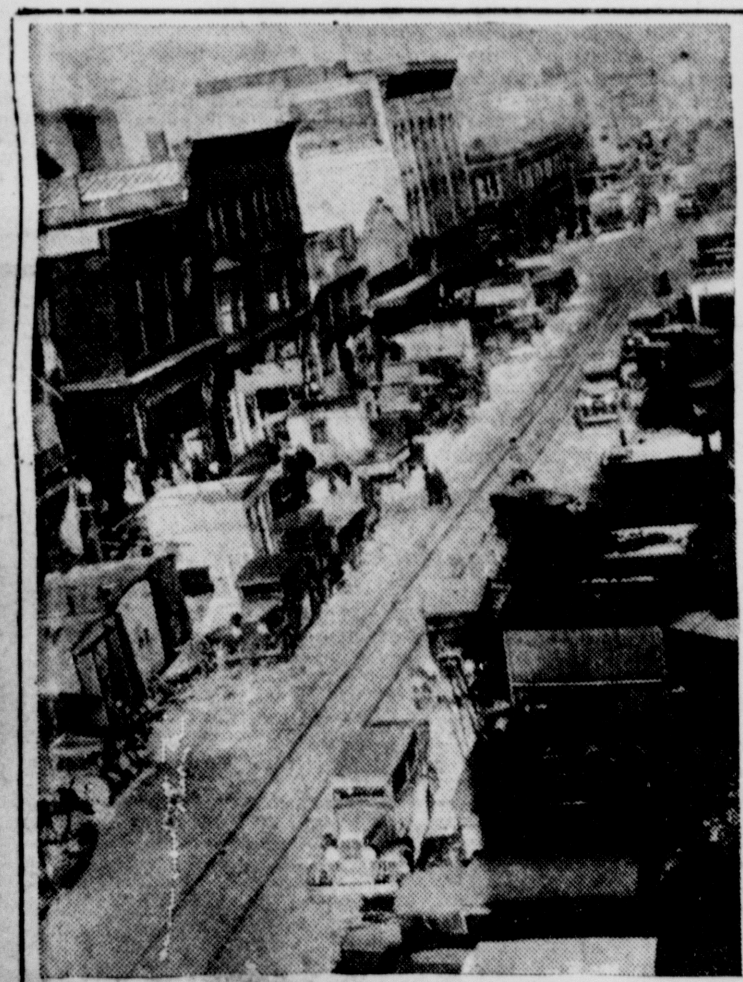

WELCOME, MR. SAYRE—Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, left, is photographed at Washington as he welcomes Francis B. Sayre, new assistant secretary, to the state department. Sayre, well known as an educator and diplomat, is a son-in-law of the late President Wilson.

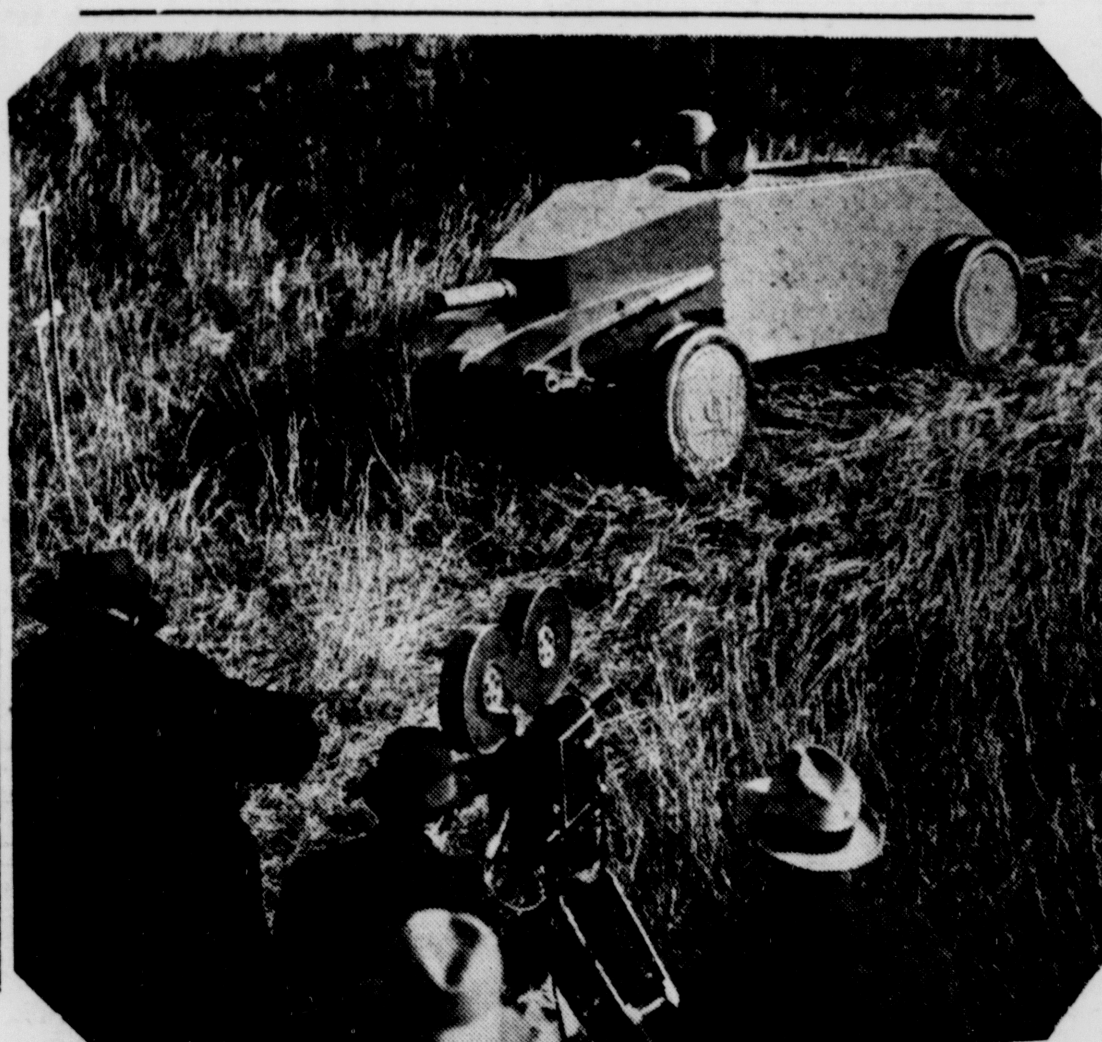

PRINCESS OF PACIFIC—Barbed in a native South seas dress, Miss Jane Hincks is pictured at Pasadena, Cal., following her selection as "Princess of the Pacific" in the court of beauties which will rule over the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

SEA VAMP—In the shade of waving palms bewitching "sea vamps" await the arrival of blizzard-weary sojourners from the north at St. Petersburg, Fla. Quite alluring, isn't it?

GRADUALLY FADING—The farmers' curb markets, long a picturesque sight in American small towns, are gradually passing out of existence in favor of special buildings which are being constructed to accommodate the rural folk who come to town each week to sell produce. This photo shows a curb market at Williamsport, Pa., one of the last survivors of the custom in the Keystone State.

FLYING TANK LATEST WAR TOOL—The "flying tank", a new destructive weapon, is shown negotiating a bit of swamp in its first trials at New York City. The machine is so light it can be carried on an ordinary transport plane and it has a speed of 100 miles an hour.

JOHN HAS A KEEN EYE—Celebrating his sixty-fifth birthday, John Nance Garner, vice president of the United States, took down his musket and went hunting. This photo, which was sent to one of Garner's friends in Washington, shows the vice president with a deer he killed, ample proof of his prowess as a huntsman.

ON FLYING VISIT—Viscount Astor, head of the English branch of the Astor clan, and husband of Lady Astor, is photographed upon arrival in New York. The viscount's stay in the United States will be short, as he plans to be in England for the Christmas holidays.

MID-WEST, COAST DOMINATE ALL-AMERICAN

Claim 7 Speed and Power in Every Line of This Grid Model

Posts On AP Squad

Skladany and Buckler Represent East-ern Teams.

BY ALAN GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Fortified by a 201-pound line, a quartet of the hardest-running, most versatile backfield men to be found anywhere in the broad gridiron land and supported by the solemn weight of expert opinion, the All-America football team of 1933 stands ready, if needed, to take the field today and prove it's the best eleven that can be put together.

Although the Middle West, as befits the section producing the year's strongest collection of college squads, emerges for the fifth straight season with the lion's share of all-star honors, this ninth Associated Press consensus team is distinctly representative of the best in every major zone of competition. It combines the fiery zeal of the south with the gridiron experience of the east, the flashiness of the far western game and the solid defensive factors that play so vital a part in the success of Big Ten football.

It is, in short as well as in theory, the kind of an aggregation that coaches dream about, with the "shock troops" of the second and third teams, completing the All-America squad of 33, all plenty good enough to make the "regu-lars" worry about their jobs.

Four Stand-Outs
Few of the men selected for the first team hold their high rank by anything but the closest sort of margin. It was not difficult to point the All-America finger at such stalwarts as Fred Crawford of Duke, greatest of the South's line-men and the "key" player of an unbeaten team; Chuck Bernard, defensive genius and center of Michigan's Big Ten champions, or so consistently brilliant a pair of backs as "Pug" Lund of Minnesota and Jack Buckler of West Point. Yet even these players were not without rivals and the battle for positions otherwise was marked by the hottest kind of argument.

There has been less of the so-called All-America ballyhoo this year than at any time in the past half-dozen seasons. Publicity men seem to have joined the coaches in catching the spirit and emphasis of team play. Thus a high-scoring back one Saturday night might be the blocking for a team-mate the following week and consequently complicate the work of the experts. A team like Princeton, undefeated, untied and not even scored upon until next to its last game of the season, demonstrated how a place at the peak could be gained without an All-America thunder echoing nearby.

The dominant strength of the middle west looms conspicuously in the All-America picture, as well as the team records, despite the downfall of that erstwhile pace-setter, Notre Dame. Held scoreless in eight out of nine games to the complete astonishment of one and all who wondered at this waste of man-power, the fighting Irish failed to produce an All-American player for the first time in five years. This is a striking contrast to Notre Dame's record of putting no less than nine players on the first teams of the last four seasons.

The Big Ten and Big Six, however, combine to collect four of the eleven All-America positions. Three from the Pacific Coast, two each from the South and East complete the roster. The entire squad of 33 numbers 10 from the Far East nine from the middle west, eight from the east and six from the south.

Three Fine Backfields
Since it is the most interesting as well as the most controversial feature of the situation, analysis of the backfield calls for prompt treatment, if not a defense. Certainly no fault can be found with a backfield consisting of "Cotton" Warburton of Southern California at quarterback and George Henry Sauer, 175-pound Nebraska fullback in combination with Lund and Buckler. The difficulty is in convincing a large and loud minority that it has qualities superior to the second team quartet, composed of Paul Johnson of Army, Beattie Feathers of Tennessee, Duane Purvis of Purdue and "Iron Mike" Mikulak of Oregon.

For that matter, the remaining group of Montgomery of Columbia, Franklin of Oregon State, Wilson of St. Mary's and Kercheval of Kentucky would scarcely yield much to either of the previously mentioned backfield sets. All four of these players, besides ability to run, block and back up the line, rank among the year's greatest kickers. They have helped a wide spread campaign to put the foot back in football to stay.

Warburton, a 147-pound package of momentum that proved one of the hardest to handle all year, can thank the Southern California system for the edge he gains over Army's more versatile Johnson. The Trojan offense features the alteration of crack ball-carrying quarterbacks, whereas in West Point's scheme of attack Johnson has a full-time job of running the team.

Perfect Records At Stake

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. — Army, Princeton and Duke staked their perfect records against stout opposition today in the grand finale to one of the most exciting seasons in football history.

Army's dashing cadets encountered Notre Dame's powerful but oft-beaten eleven at the Yankee stadium while Princeton was renewing its ancient feud with Yale in New Haven. Duke meantime deployed against Georgia Tech at Atlanta. All three were closing their regular campaigns, so far unmarred by defeat or tie.

All three started as favorites but wary and cautious just the same, ready for hidden pitfalls. Princeton, on its record, was a "hot" 2½ to 1 selection over the Bulldogs of Yale.

After the Blue Devils' unimpressive showing against North Carolina State, Duke's supporters were frankly worried about the tussle with Georgia Tech, a hard-fighting outfit with a tricky offense. Duke was the public choice but by no top-heavy margin.

Otherwise the national program was marked by Georgia's rally into the far west seeking revenge on Southern California's Trojans for the 60-0 licking of two years ago. The Trojans, however, were favored.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O. Dec. 2.—A $10 fine assessed Charles Carmack by Mayor Simon Kappeler of Dover for selling copies of the American Examiner was set aside by Common Pleas Judge Philip L. Wilkins. Judge Wilkins held that Carmack might have had no knowledge of a story to which Traffic Officer Robert Baker took offense.

PREP "GRANGE"

It is doubtful any griddier in the land can match the sensational scoring achievements of Harley Rogers (above) this season.

By The Associated Press.
INDEPENDENCE, Kas.—A lad who has averaged 41 yards on 10 touchdowns dashes is being acclaimed as independence high school's "Red Grange" as he finishes prey football competition.

He is Harley Paul Rogers, 165-pound senior halfback, whose brilliant running has made him a constant threat to opposing defenses this season. Five times he registered touchdowns on sprints for more than half the length of the field.

Rogers, 17 years old, is an all-around athlete, earning letters in basketball and track as well as on the gridiron. He is rated the best prep sprinter in southeastern Kansas.

BIG TEN CAGE SEASON OPENS

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Basketball in the western conference will come to life tonight when Iowa meets Millikin university and Chicago tackles North Central in pre-season games.

Iowa will send a team of veterans against Millikin. The Maroons, however, will be represented by a makeshift team.

Elis Set For Tiger Invasion

Yale Coach Fears Princeton Aerial Attack.

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 2.—One of the two unbeaten, untied teams in the east, the mighty Tigers of Princeton, came down to the end of the 1933 season trial today to battle with the war torn Bulldogs of Yale, spicing with a burning lust for revenge a time-hallowed rivalry that never needs added allure.

Two years ago, in the same Yale bowl, a great Yale team for a day forced upon a frazzed Princeton eleven as great a humiliation as the Tigers ever had suffered in the 60 years of their rivalry. Yale's 51 to 14 victory that day touched off a powder trail that has fizzed since straight toward this day, and an explosion that would blast the Elis as Princeton was blasted in 1931.

All week Reggie Root, Yale's young head coach, has sought frantically to acquaint the Elis backs with the rudiments of pass defense.

Despite the fact that Bob Lassiter, Eli captain, was not scheduled to start because of an injured knee, there was an air of quiet and subdued confidence about the Yale camp.

The probable lineups:
Princeton Fairman L. E. Combs
Ceppi L. T. Kilcullen
Weller L. G. Nichols
Kaibough C. Malin
John R. G. De Angelis
Lane R. T. C. Curtin
Lea R. E. Rankin
Kadell Q. B. T. Curtin
Mac Van L. H. Whitehead
LeMcMillan R. H. Keeling
Constable F. B. Nikkel or Callan

Officials:
Referee—E. J. O'Brien, Tufts.
Umpire—W. B. Elcock, Dartmouth.
Head linesman—H. A. Fisher, Columbia.
Field judge—E. E. Miller, Penn State.

SCHOOL TEAMS BATTLE TODAY

By The Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 2. — For charity's sake two high school football teams took the field for a game today, with a crowd of 25,000 or more anticipated if the weather favored the fans.

The contest, sponsored by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, featured South High, city champion, and Shaker Heights high, champion of the Eastern Scholastic conference. The stake at issue was the newspaper's trophy, and the beneficiaries were thousands of the city's needy who won't have a Christmas without a show of benevolence from the public.

SPARTANS FACE BEARS SUNDAY

PORTSMOUTH, O., Dec. 2.—The Portsmouth Spartans, with a chance to share the leadership in the western division of the National Professional football league, will clash with the Chicago Bears, last year's champions, here Sunday.

Two practice sessions a day have been the rule since the Spartans returned to their home grounds Monday. Coach Patsy Clark has emphasized a defense to stop He-witt and Nagurski and has attempted to perfect an offense to outguess the Bears. The Spartans are expected to take to the air in their attack.

PROBE AMBULANCE CHASING

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2.—Reports of "ambulance chasing" here will be investigated by a special sub-committee of the Cincinnati Bar association.

A case at General hospital in which ten representatives of lawyers were said to have contacted the father of a child hurt in a traffic accident prompted the action. At the same time police issued orders to curb the activities of garages which use short wave radio receivers to intercept police reports of automobile accidents and then rush wreckers to the scene. As many as six wreckers have besieged one damaged car.

Cadets Rule 9-5 Favorites

Crowd of 78,000 to See Big Game, However.

By HERBERT W. BARKER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The 19th renewal of one of football's classic rivalries, Army vs. Notre Dame, brought the metropolitan district's season to a smashing close today.

Despite the fact that Army's undefeated and untied Cadets ruled 9 to 5 favorites over a Rambler outfit already beaten five times, prospects were for a capacity crowd of 78,000.

There was nothing whatever in the records to indicate Notre Dame had much chance of stopping the charge of the West Pointers in general or Paul (Heavy) Johnson and Jack Buckler in particular.

Illinois, Yale, Harvard and Navy and five other foes of lesser ranking have bowed to the military academy in one of the most successful campaigns in Army history. Johnson and Buckler haven't been stopped this year.

Victories have been few and far between for Notre Dame. The ground-gaining ability of this particular Notre Dame eleven has been equaled only by its woeful inability to score.

Despite "bear" stories from South Bend this week, Notre Dame was at full strength for the big battle with the single exception of Fullback Don Elser.

The forecast was for cloudy but moderate weather.

Probable lineups:

Army	Pos.	Notre Dame
Kopcsak	L.E.	Miller
Hutchinson	L.T.	Krause
Jablonsky (C)	L.G.	Leonard
Bucknam	C.	Gorman
Gooch	R.G.	Wunsch
Boall	R.T.	Roach
Burlingame	R.E.	Dovore (C)
Johnson	Q.B.	Bonar
Buckler	L.H.	Lukats
Sebastian	R.H.	Branchau
Stancock	P.B.	Banas
Referee		C. G. Crowell, Swarthmore.

Buckeye Alumni Praise Coaches

Clark County Group Cite 1933 Season As Successful.

By The Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 2.—An echo of comment on the Athletic administration at Ohio State university was found last night at a meeting of Clark county alumni who gathered to observe Ohio State Day.

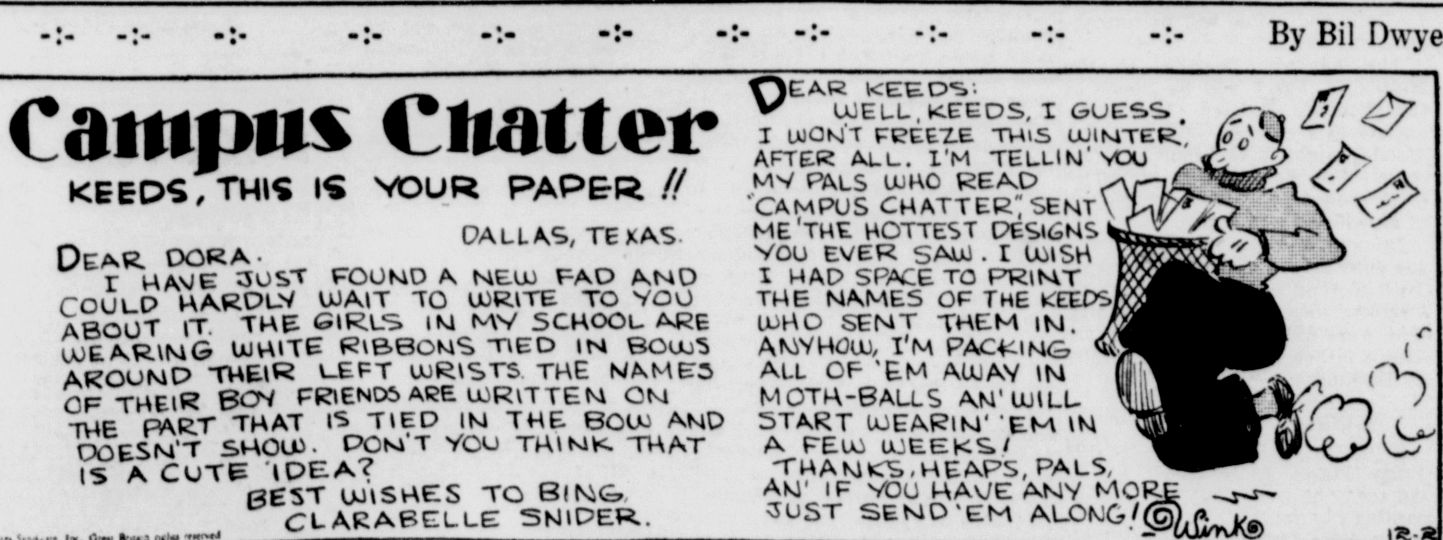

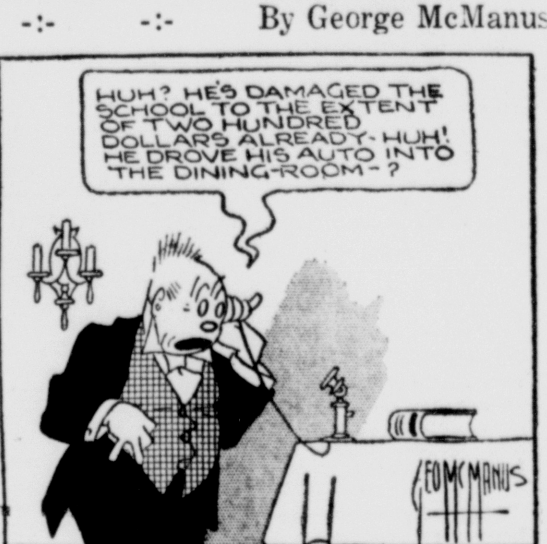

The present coaching staff was praised, together with the athletic administration, in a resolution adopted unanimously. Attorney General John W. Bricker, addressing the group after adoption of the resolution, also commended the coaching staff.

The athletic department was commended for its "fine sportsmanship, business-like and efficient administration and gentlemanly conduct." But the resolution added that members of the coaching staff "have at all times put welfare of the players first, then school, then public, in development of the intercollegiate athletic program."

The meeting cited that the football season just closed had been a successful one.

LEGION COUNCIL TO MEET

A meeting of Columbiana council, American Legion, will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m., at the rooms of George McNamee Post No. 31 at East Palestine. County Chairman W. S. Millinger of Leontonia will be in charge.

MAY WEST FILM, "I'M NO ANGEL," OPENS AT COLUMBIA

Actress Plays Role of Carnival Dancer in Screen Play.

Mae West came back to town Friday in a new Paramount picture "I'm No Angel," booked for a week's engagement at the Columbia theater. Her latest picture proves superior to her first starring film, "She Done Him Wrong," in every respect—story, star performance, excellence of production, wisecracks and songs.

Miss West gives a splendid performance—she portrays a colorful character, Tira, a hardboiled, carnival-dancer who becomes a New York sensation. On her rise to fame and fortune, she vamps any number of men, finally ending up besieged by her "tall, dark and handsome," a society millionaire. She sings five sensational songs, dances the "midway"—a spectacular variation of that same shimmy which she is said to have originated; wears lovely clothes, and she scintillates with wit in an hilarious courtroom scene.

Since the movies were in their swaddling clothes, no star ever has so completely dominated a film as Miss West, but Paramount cleverly has surrounded her with a capable cast including Cary Grant, Kent Taylor, Edward Arnold, Ralf Harlowe, Gregory Ratoff, Dorothy Peterson, Gertrude Michael, Russell Hopton, William B. Davidson and others.

"I'm No Angel" was made from a story by Miss West herself, the tale of Tira, a carnival dancer.

She becomes famous by putting her curves into a lion-tamer's act, goes to New York as the million dollar beauty, Cary Grant, a society millionaire, falls in love with her, and they are going to be married, when crooks frame her, and he breaks the engagement. She sues Grant for breach of promise, collects $250,000 in an amusing trial. But they still love each other, and after the heaviest try to kill Mae by turning a killer lion on her. Grant discovers she has been innocent of all wrongdoing, and the film ends happily.—R. S. E.

GREATER MARCUS SHOW BOOKED AT CERAMIC, DEC. 15

Company of 70 to Offer Two-day Engagement Here.

With a company of nearly 70 persons and a special train of two baggage cars and Pullmans required to transport it from stand to stand, the Marcus show is the largest that has ever appeared in East Liverpool.

Before the World War, A. B. Marcus, the veteran proprietor, had established his outfit as the foremost attraction playing the better class of popular price theaters in the eastern states. From 1920 to 1925 the Marcus show appeared in legitimate theaters at high prices.

For the last decade the company has become an established attraction in the larger vaudeville and picture theaters from coast to coast.

America's boy friend finds a new sweetheart!
James Dunn whose many successes have made him one of Miss America's "boy friends" and Claire Trevor who is rapidly gaining an equally important position in the hearts of the fans, are teamed in the new Fox Film production "Jimmy and Sally," which comes to the State theater Sunday.

It's the romance of two real young people living across an apartment house wall who because they lack money and have extravagant ideas must postpone their marriage. The more they postpone the marriage date, the more their quarrels increase.

He is the publicity man for a large corporation, whose attempts at putting across what he considers to be sure-fire stunts, continuously gets him into hot water. After a number of these stunts, he finds himself without a job. Meanwhile his sweetheart tells him she doesn't like his non-marriage ideas and finally breaks with him. Then he realizes what he has failed to appreciate, both in job and a sweetheart, and returns, only to find more difficulties awaiting him.

Preview sources report that James Dunn and Claire Trevor who portray the featured roles as the misunderstanding sweethearts have their most important roles to date. In support of Dunn, and Miss Trevor who was last seen opposite Spencer Tracy in "The Mad Game," is Harvey Stephens, who will be remembered for his outstanding performance in "The Worst Woman in Paris?" Some of the other members of the cast are Lya Lys, Jed Prouty, Gloria Roy, Alma Lloyd and John Arledge.

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

Chapter 32
IT IS LOVE

"I don't believe Mrs. Rodgers would have told me anything if she hadn't turned out to be Nanna's sister," Caroline continued. "I didn't recognize her, because she used to be thin like Nanna, and now she's exactly like a feather-bed. But she knew me at once—she said I hadn't changed a bit."

"No—you haven't," said Jim. And that was the last moment that he could have said it, because, in the very middle of saying it, Caroline stopped before the dear little familiar child, half playmate and half sister, whom he had teased, petted and adored from the time she had first clutched at his hair with her baby fingers.

Something happened, and she was a new Caroline—a Caroline whom he knew, and did not know, whose hand on his arm sent a tremor all over him. It was horribly disconcerting and embarrassing. He lost the thread of what she was saying because there was a pounding noise in his ears.

He looked at her, and then looked quickly away. She was a new, enchanted Caroline, who took his breath with her warmth and beauty—enchanted, and enchanting.

Jim took hold of himself.

"I didn't hear what you said."

He looked no higher than the dust-sheet which covered the bed, but he knew that she was looking at him. He hadn't the faintest idea what she had said, or what she was going to say. It came like a bomb-shell.

"They think you were in love with Mrs. Van Berg,"

He looked up then with a sharply interrogative jerk of the head.

"With Susie?"

"Yes," Her eyes were very bright. "Were you? You needn't say if you don't want to."

"Well, I wasn't. What put it into anyone's head that I was?"

"That's what I was telling you," said Caroline earnestly. "You see, Mrs. Van Berg's maid is going about saying that Mr. Van Berg was shot because he found out something he wasn't meant to—that's to say, she doesn't say it right out, she just drops hints. Mrs. Rodgers calls her an 'Inting 'ussy.' And she says—she says perhaps the emeralds weren't stolen at all, only hidden to make it look as if there had been a burglary."

"What nonsense!"

"Jim, you didn't think I believed her! It was only—I thought—you might have been a quarrel."

"Well, I didn't!"

He got up and began to walk about the room. It was more than he could do to sit within a yard of Caroline and have her ask him whether he was in love with another woman.

She sat where she was, bareheaded, her old brown coat open over a cream shirt and shabby tweed skirt. Her eyes followed him.

"There wasn't any quarrel?"

"How do I know?"

It was terrible, but he didn't know.

"Jim—you don't mind my telling you? The hussy says Mrs. Van Berg used to have a photograph of you. She says it was always out until that night. She says it has never been out since."

He stood in the middle of the room frowning intently.

"I gave her a photograph—they'd been awfully good to me. She may have had half a dozen reasons for putting it away." He said it without conviction. Why should she have put his photograph away like that? You'd think a woman whose husband had just been shot would have something better to do. You wouldn't expect her to be fiddling with photographs.

He began to wonder whether Susie Van Berg knew that he had been with Elmer that night.

"I was there," he said. Elmer and I had drinks together. I wonder if Susie knew that. In her statement she said that she came down to get a book and heard voices in the study. She may have heard more than she said—she may have recognized my voice."

"Wouldn't she have said?"

"I don't know—we were pretty good friends—she'd know I wouldn't."

He broke off sharp.

Suppose by any horrible chance he and Elmer had had a row. Suppose Susie had heard them quarrelling. And then Elmer Van Berg had been found shot. Would Susie have kept his photograph out after that? Or would she have pushed it out of sight with nervous, shaking hands?

He lost a bit of what Caroline was saying—something about fingerprints. Then he got it. She was talking about Elmer's fingerprint book.

"There was a page torn out," said Caroline.

He felt the shock of that as she had felt it.

"When?"

"Oh afterwards—when the police found it. You see, you were right about the drinks. There was a tray and glasses, and the police took the fingerprints. And then the butler told them about Mr. Van Berg's book. He told them it was on the table, but when they looked for it it wasn't there. They found it stuffed down behind the book-case. And there was a page torn out."

"A page torn out!" Then, sharply, "How did they know?"

"The cook says she remembers the page. She hasn't told the police yet. Mrs. Rodgers says she won't unless she is asked, but they might ask her any minute. She says she remembers because there wasn't any name on that page, only initials. I suppose she takes an interest in fingerprints because of her husband being a policeman. I suppose—"

"What were the initials?"

Caroline looked at him piteously. It hurt too much. Her carnation color was all gone. Her voice was a whisper as she said,

"J. R."

Jim laughed. His laughter had a hard edge to it.

"We're putting the rope round my neck all right—" he said.

"Jim!"

"They were my fingerprints—I remember making them and putting my initials there. But I'll swear—" He stopped short.

"What?" said Caroline quickly.

He laughed again.

"I was going to say I could swear I hadn't torn the page out, but I can't—I can't swear to anything. Go on. Are there any more bits of evidence?"

Caroline clenched her hands.

"The cook's nephew saw you in the drive. He used to caddy for you—a boy called Willie Bowman."

"Willie? He knew me?"

"Yes, he did. He told his aunt—he said it was about midnight."

"That's a bit of bad luck, but it can't be helped. I don't seem to have covered my tracks very well—do I?"

He saw Caroline looking at him with loving, anxious eyes. The candle light was bright on her ruffled hair. He looked away from her and spoke from where he stood with his back to her hearth.

"I've got to make up my mind

Marie Dressler is co-starred for the first time with Lionel Barrymore in "Christopher Bean," which opens an engagement at 5 P. M. Sunday at the Ceramic theater, East Liverpool. Based on the New York stage play, "The Late Christopher Bean," this film is the drama of a woman who shows a man the road back to honor. It provides an intensely interesting vehicle for the talents of these two well-known stars of the screen.

CROWD CHEERS FREED LYNCH SUSPECTS

Waving American flags and cheering wildly, residents of Princess Anne, Md., turned out en masse to welcome the four townsmen recently arrested by troops on charges of lynching George Armwood, the Negro who was accused of attacking an aged white woman. The men were freed from Baltimore jail after habeas corpus proceedings.

what I'm going to do."

"Yes."

He squared his shoulders.

"What I should like to do is to open up the house, get in servants, and go about my affairs as I've a perfect right to do."

"Yes," said Caroline. Her eyes brightened. Jim at last place—Jim quite near! It was like the most lovely dream. But she knew quite well that it was a dream.

"That's what I'd like to do. What I expect I ought to do it to go up to town and see Robert Arbuthnot—" He paused. The pause lasted a long time . . .

"What I'm going to do is what will look most incriminating if things go wrong and it comes to a trial. I'm going to mark time." He began to pace the room again with a certain restless energy. "You see, if I come out in to the open, every one will ask me questions, and every time it's a question I can't answer, I'll be making things worse. Where have I been—and what have I been doing. Sometimes I'm on the edge of remembering, too I want to give myself a chance—stay here and keep quiet—"

Your Health

By Dr. R. S. Copeland

"My neighbor who suffers from a skin disease called 'psoriasis' is very fond of my small son. I am concerned about his child catching the disease. Is there any danger?"

I was glad to answer this letter and advise the worried parent that there is no need for anxiety. Psoriasis is a chronic inflammation of the skin. It is not contagious and cannot be transmitted from one individual to another. Nor is it a sign of general ill health, for strange as it may seem, the condition is frequently found in robust and otherwise perfectly healthy persons.

This baffling disease is frequently confused with eczema. Unlike eczema, psoriasis does not itch. It is dry, and is usually found on the unexposed surface of the body. Eczema itches. It is moist, and may be found anywhere on the body, especially the hands and face. One thing eczema has in common with psoriasis is that it is not contagious.

At one time psoriasis was believed to be caused by an infection. This theory has long been discarded. Certainly, no germ has been isolated that is capable of causing this disease. No evidence has been advanced to confirm the belief that it is infectious.

Recent investigation tends to show that this disorder is a result of some disturbance in the digestive tract. It is possible it may be the result of some vitamin deficiency, the exact nature of which has not yet been discovered.

A recent report states that sufferers from this skin affliction are benefited by a diet that is low in protein. These authorities claim that when the diet is exceedingly low in protein foods, the skin clears and only faint traces can be detected. Sufficient protein is included in the diet to make up for "wear and tear" of the body without increasing the protein content. It is advised that foods, such as meat, fish, fowl, meat soups, eggs, liver and kidneys which are high in protein content be omitted from the diet. Of course, a diet as severe as this should only be continued under the personal supervision of a physician.

Since psoriasis is a chronic disturbance, and requires prolonged treatment, the victim becomes discouraged and sometimes resorts to patent medicines. The number of salves and ointments that have been recommended for this disorder is legion. In desperation, the sufferer will try anything once, and in many instances the "remedy" irritates his skin rather than benefits it.

May I warn you against the use of any ointment that has not been prescribed by a physician who has first carefully examined the eruption and studied your skin. I say this because not all skins are alike; an ointment that may be beneficial to one individual may be harmful to another.

In applying an ointment, it is advisable first to get rid of the scales and rough layer of skin. These scales which are characteristic of psoriasis are best removed by taking a warm bath. Use a stiff brush and plenty of soap. After thorough drying, apply the prescribed ointment. Do not become discouraged, for by persistence you may overcome the affliction.
